

Module 9

Revision Tests

In this module, there are five revision exercises, each of them designed to be as close to the School Certificate standard as possible. Each is designed to be done in a normal classroom lesson, i.e. of about 40 minutes. Under normal situation, you should be able to take on the five tests within the five English language periods in a week. You are advised to time yourself and keep to it as much as possible, even if you are not invigilated in an examination atmosphere.

Test One: Test of Orals

Section One

In this test, a sound is presented before a group of four words. Identify which of the words in each number contains the sound indicated in each case. Here is an example.

/i:/ A. police B. grid C. respond D. think

The correct answer is A. This is because the word "police" is pronounced /pəli:s/, i.e. with a long /i:/ sound. All the other options do not contain this sound. Do the others the same way.

Sounds	A	B	C	D
1. /i/	least	list	lest	last
2. /æ/	part	pare	pair	pat
3. /ɔ:/	coin	cur	core	cure
4. /əu/	hop	hope	help	how
5. /eə/	heard	here	hear	hard
6. /ʃ/	shore	sore	saw	chore
7. /tʃ/	shill	sill	chill	chalice
8. /ð/	thank	think	these	sheath
9. /θ/	den	then	thin	those
10. /ʌ/	cat	cot	cut	caught

Section Two

Identify which of the four words labelled A " D contains the same sound as it is underlined in the key word. Here is an example:

Key word: kind A. crude B. know C. arch D. ash

The correct answer is A, because the word "crude" contains the sound /k/ which is underlined in "kind". The other words, "know", "ash" and "arch" do not contain the sound

/k/.

Key words	A	B	C	D
11. pr aise	psychedelic	pneumonia	plan	phrase
12. fl ame	affair	avail	feel	phlegm
13. ass ure	aside	chalice	chalet	arise
14. sub let	omelette	chalet	forth	eighth
15. Ge orge	gulp	judge	groin	gnat
16. c ake	rack	cap	care	rain

18. ge ese	guess	police	live	life
19. e arth	ear	here	girl	heave
20. ro pe	hop	hope	hoop	love

Section Three

In this section, identify which of the three words in A, B, C, or D rhymes with the key word in each group. Here is an example:

rain A. ran B. bank C. cane D. drank

The correct answer is C. This is because "cane" rhymes with (sounds like) the key word "rain". The others do not sound similarly.

Key words	A	B	C	D
21. sew	pew	drew	sow	grew
22. abide	ride	abode	ridden	bid
23. fee	feel	agree	green	veer
24. count	sound	accost	account	court
25. hose	horse	purpose	house	fuse
26. brazen	dozen	adze	occasion	rice
27. possess	access	assess	excess	possession
28. hour	how	haul	our	owl
29. detail	detain	entail	retard	rental
30. suspend	spent	suspense	expense	append

Test Two: Lexis and Structure

Section One

In this test, there is a passage with missing spaces. Read through the passage carefully and decide which of the items labelled A " D below the passage would best fill each of the spaces.

We arrived our __31__ one morning to find that our mathematics teacher had put up a __32__ on the __33 __. After the "Good morningâ€™ greeting, she told us to settle down quickly and begin the work in our ___34___. She told us that she had started calculating the time. So we sat down immediately. The ___35___ were rather difficult, so some boys started to grumble. Most of the questions were on quadratic ___36___. Although she had taught us the ___37___ a week earlier, and whereas she had done several ___38___ with us, we had forgotten most of it and so the sums were very ___39___ for us. When the forty minutes ___40___ for the lesson ended, and the bell was ___41___, she announced that we should collect our work for marking. I had done only three of the five sums, but some of us had actually not ___42___ anything; she told them to submit their work all the same. That was when one of the ___43___ burst into tears. Just as I was assuming that the girl was too ___44___ to do that, some others followed. Before long, more than half of the ___45___ took over. Of course, the maths teacher was not bothered: she merely collected the work and walked away.

	A	B	C	D
31.	classroom	hostel	dormitory	office
32.	quotation	drawing	test	note
33.	shelf	flannel-graph	blackboard	screen

Test Three: Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions set on it.

The alarm clock rang stridently, suddenly breaking the quietness. It was five o'clock. The cold harmattan air was blowing gently. At this hour of the morning most people would prefer to go on sleeping. Tumi too would have preferred just that, but she could not. The alarm clock that went on ringing would not let her. The desire to remain in the good books of Madam would not let her. And her past, the type of training she had received, would not let her. Slowly, she unwrapped the covering cloth from around her body. With a wide, long yawn, she got up, switched on the light and stopped the alarm clock on the table.

Slowly, she folded her covering cloth neatly and placed it on the pillow. She then changed into the usual apparel—a long khaki gown. That had become the emblem of what she was in the city: a house servant to a modern working family. She had two such dresses. One was always cleanly kept and on reserve. She went about in the same khaki uniform to the market, to the nursery and primary school where she daily took Madam's children and to anywhere she went on an errand. Indeed, she had come to be known as the girl in khaki uniform.

Ten minutes after five o'clock, she was in the kitchen. She lighted a match-stick and lighted the kerosene stove. Within minutes she had a kettle of water on fire. Then, leaving it, she went to the living room to sweep the floor and dust the chairs and stools. After arranging the books, flower vase, and some other odds and ends on the large coffee-table, she went back to the kitchen. With the water now boiling, she made the corn pap and tea. The frying pan on fire, she poured in some groundnut oil. She took out some tomatoes and onions from the refrigerator and sliced them neatly into the large china plate. The oil now was almost boiling. She took out four big eggs from the fridge, broke them and poured the content into another plate. There she thoroughly whisked the content with a fork. Before long, she had prepared the omelette for breakfast. It was almost six o'clock, time to get the two young boys out of bed and prepare them for the day's activities.

Questions:

- a. What is the role of the girl described here in the family?
- b. Give two reasons why she could not go on enjoying the harmattan sleep.
- c. In what way did she manage to always appear neat despite her chores?

- d. Describe the four activities she undertook within the first hour out of bed.
- e. Through that hour, she alone was active in the house. Why was this so?
- f. From the description of the activities in the kitchen, what type of family do you think the girl lived with?
- g. The alarm clock that went on ringing would not let her.
 - i. What type of sentence is this?
 - ii. Identify the clauses and indicate their functions.
- h. Provide another word or phrase that could replace each of the following:
 - 1. stridently
 - 2. training
 - 3. emblem
 - 4. arranging
 - 5. whisked

Test Four: Summary

- a. In one sentence, summarise why Tumi forced herself to get up from the bed in the cold harmattan morning.
- b. In not more than three well connected sentences, summarise the different chores she performed between 5.00 and 6.00 am.

Test Five: Continuous Writing

You recently performed or engaged in an action. Looking back, you realised that you did what you did because you did not really know the full facts. Describe what you did in detail and why you would not have done it.
